4. Communications: Written and Oral

- (a) Steve Roberts, representing Congregations for the Homeless, thanked the City for partnering to develop an Eastside men's emergency shelter and a permanent supportive housing facility with social services. He said Congregations for the Homeless began on the Eastside in 1993. It has been helping homeless men since that time, with the specific mission of moving them into a life of stability and independence. He said 571 men accessed the winter shelter last year, and more than 600 men used the day center over the past year. Mr. Roberts said the new facility will have 100 beds, a larger day center, social services (medical, dental, mental health, substance use), and permanent housing units. Partners include King County, Imagine Housing, and the City. The project team has been researching facilities around the country to design a high-quality facility.
- (b) Sybil Glasby, Director of Housing Development for Imagine Housing, thanked the Mayor and Council for authorizing the City to enter into the Letter of Agreement related to developing the shelter and housing facility. She said Imagine Housing looks forward to developing the project in close proximity to transit and other services with the opportunity for permanent housing. Imagine Housing has more than 1,200 residents on the Eastside. The organization originated at St. Andrews Lutheran Church and has provided housing for 29 years. Ms. Glasby said there are 2,643 households on the waiting list for permanent affordable housing on the Eastside. She said permanent housing enables individuals to address other aspects of their lives including their health, employment and education.
- (c) Pat McDermott said he is a member of Christ the King Lutheran Church in the Eastgate area, which has been a host church through Congregations for the Homeless for 22 years. He is the volunteer chief financial officer for Congregations for the Homeless and serves as Vice Chair on its Board of Directors. He is treasurer and a Board member for Imagine Housing as well. He said he is grateful to be able to work with two organizations that have had such a positive impact on the Eastside. He thanked the City for addressing homelessness and affordable housing with regional partners, and for recognizing that housing stability is critical to regaining independence.
- (d) Jennifer Fischer, Executive Director, said Bellevue Lifespring supports 3,700 Bellevue children and their families living in poverty, including through emergency rent support. She commended Congregations for the Homeless, Imagine Housing, and the City for its work to address homelessness. She thanked Councilmember Slatter for meeting with the Eastside Legal Assistance Program (ELAP) to address the Highland Village situation. Ms. Fischer said a number of organizations support Highland Village's efforts including Jubilee Reach, ELAP, Bellevue School District Student Services, Church Council of Greater Seattle, Catholic Community Services of King County, Baby Basic Needs of Bellevue, Tenants Union of Washington State, independent contractors and residents, SeaMar Community Health Centers, Eastside Pathways, and others. Ms. Fischer noted 55 Highland Village residents in the audience. She said residents are worried and frightened about their pending eviction.

- (e) Angelica DeAnda said she is a licensed mental health counselor and a child mental health specialist with SeaMar Community Health Centers. SeaMar recently hosted a meeting with State Representative Joan McBride to discuss concerns regarding Highland Village. Ms. DeAnda said she is very concerned about the levels of stress on the Highland Village families. She said stress threatens mental and physical health and can affect the ability of children to meet developmental milestones. Some residents are receiving special mental health services, which they are likely to lose if they are displaced.
- (f) Ronaldo Fuentes-Monroy, a resident of Highland Village, said he is in the 8th grade at the International Middle School, where he has many friends, likes his teachers, and participates in debate, drama, and the activism club. His family cannot find affordable housing in Bellevue and he does not want to leave. He thanked the Council for the opportunity to speak.

Mayor Stokes said the City is pleased to be able to work with regional partners on the men's homeless shelter in Bellevue. He noted projects for a women's shelter in Kirkland and a family shelter in Redmond as well. With regard to Highland Village, Mr. Stokes said the City is working hard with the developer and other agencies and organizations to reach a positive resolution. He said he appreciated the hard work of social service agencies, and he assured residents that the City is working to do what it can. Mayor Stokes thanked everyone for coming to the Council meeting and for sharing their concerns.

- (g) Charlie Klinge, representing the Washington Sensible Shorelines Association, commented on the Utilities Department's cross connection program. He said shoreline property owners received a letter about the City's interest in identifying backflow contamination from private systems into the public system. He expressed concern that residents could be required to allow inspections of their property or be subjected to code enforcement actions, potentially including the termination of water service. He expressed concern that property owners' constitutional rights will be violated if they deny access to their properties.
- (h) Linda Bock spoke in favor of Initiative 735 urging the Washington congressional delegation to propose a federal constitutional amendment to address the U.S. Supreme Court's Citizens United decision.

City Clerk Kyle Stannert said public comment on specific initiatives or ballot measures is not allowed. He said copies of Ms. Bock's comments and information would be provided to the Council.

- (i) Marty Nizlek, a resident along West Lake Sammamish Parkway, described trucks accessing the construction site at Bennett Elementary School and expressed concern regarding the weight limits and impacts to local streets. He said the parkway is the narrowest arterial in Bellevue, with the highest number of driveways of any arterial. He asked the City to check the building permits for the site and to ensure that the truck weight limits and other factors are within compliance.

- (j) Representatives of the Bellevue Youth Theatre Teen Advisory Board thanked the Council for the new theatre and invited everyone to the upcoming production of Charlotte's Web. They distributed bookmarks and flyers listing the theatre's productions this summer, noting that this is the 25th anniversary of the Bellevue Youth Theatre program.
- (k) Stephanie Walter said that, as a Planning Commissioner, she was surprised during the earlier Study Session to hear about the proposed homeless men's shelter adjacent to future transit-oriented development (TOD) in the Eastgate area. She said the Eastgate Citizen Advisory Committee (CAC) studied land use and transportation planning for approximately two years, and the Planning Commission reviewed the CAC's recommendations and held public hearings over the past year. She said a men's shelter is important for Bellevue. However, she would have preferred to hear about the Eastgate master plan before discussing whether a men's homeless shelter could be integrated into that plan. She noted her understanding that the shelter was originally discussed for a location in the Spring District. However, that site was changed to avoid interfering with the redevelopment envisioned in the BelRed Plan. Ms. Walter said she supports the need for a men's shelter and wants to ensure that the best site is chosen for the facility.

5. Reports of Community Council, Boards and Commissions: None.

Ms. Haaseth thanked Visit Bellevue Washington and Sharon Linton for sharing images that helped to tell the story. Ms. Haaseth said BTV won 30 national awards over the past 10 years. However, this is the first international award.

Mayor Stokes declared a brief recess for photographs with the video production team.

7. Council Business and New Initiatives

Mayor Stokes said the Council would be on summer recess until September 6 following tonight's meeting.

Councilmember Robertson asked staff to follow up regarding Charlie Klinge's comments during the earlier oral communications.

Referring to earlier public comment regarding West Lake Sammamish Parkway, Ms. Robertson said she was not aware of any weight limits on that road. However, the City may adopt weight limits if desired and may establish permanent conditions for construction trucks involved in development and redevelopment. She asked staff to provide information responsive to Marty Nizlek's comments.

Noting the speaker addressing a ballot initiative, Ms. Robertson suggested posting rules about the use of public facilities for political purposes until the fall elections are completed.

(a) Appointment of Pro/Con Committees for Ordinance Nos. 6303 and 6304

Mayor Stokes recalled that the Council previously voted to submit two ballot measures for the November election. He requested Council action to appoint Pro and Con committees to provide statements on the ballot measures for the fall voters guide.

The list of equipment to be surplus is attached to the agenda memo and includes eight vehicles, a trailer, an excavator, and office equipment. The items range from 12 to 27 years in age and have a total estimated salvage value of $74,400. 11. Other Ordinances, Resolutions and Motions

- (a) Ordinance No. 6306 establishing an Independent Salary Commission for the City and adding a new Chapter 3.60 of the Bellevue City Code.

City Manager Miyake introduced discussion of Ordinance No. 6306, which establishes an Independent Salary Commission to address the City Council's salary.

City Clerk Kyle Stannert recalled Council discussion on July 5 regarding options to review the Council salary. The proposed ordinance establishes an Independent Salary Commission and adds a new Chapter 3.60 to the Bellevue City Code.

Mr. Stannert noted the memo in the desk packet outlining a proposed revision to the ordinance that was provided in the meeting packet. During the July 5 meeting, the Council directed staff to conduct legal research related to the effective date of a decision made by the salary commission.

City Attorney Lori Riordan said state law indicates that the salary commission completes its review and establishes a salary schedule, which becomes effective 30 days later without further action by the commission or the City Council. If the Council wished to delay the effective date of any salary adjustment, the Council should direct the commission to file the salary schedule at a later date as well. Mr. Stannert noted that the ordinance reflects a date of December 1 for release of the salary schedule, in order to coordinate with the City's budget adoption process.

Responding to Councilmember Slatter, Ms. Riordan said state law does not allow a Bellevue Councilmember to waive his or her salary under the current city code. However, some cities have adopted an ordinance stating that a Councilmember may waive all or a portion of his or her salary and return it to the City. In further response, Ms. Riordan said the independent salary commission may decide to maintain, increase, or decrease the Council's salary.

→ Councilmember Robertson moved to adopt Ordinance No. 6306, and Councilmember Robinson seconded the motion.

[Councilmember Wallace left the meeting at 9:05 p.m.]

→ Deputy Mayor Chelminiak moved to add the following Whereas clause: "Whereas, in considering Council salaries, the Commission should recognize that the councilmembers serve as part-time citizen legislators, that the public seeks individuals motivated by service to the community, and that the salary is considered a stipend and not a replacement wage for their hours served." Councilmember Slatter seconded the proposed amendment.

Councilmember Slatter acknowledged that the Council has not had a salary evaluation or adjustment in 16 years. She respects that her fellow Councilmembers have been serving for a long time without a salary increase, and she sees the Council position as a full-time job. However, as a new Councilmember, Ms. Slatter said she was not comfortable advocating for a salary review.

Deputy Mayor Chelminiak expressed support for a comparative salary study. He said salary commissions have worked well in some communities, although salary increases have raised concerns in certain instances. He prefers to see the Council salary as a stipend.

Councilmember Robinson said the purpose from her perspective is that the City stay competitive as it continues to grow and as the Council's role and workload is expanded. She wants to ensure that serving on the Council is not limited only to individuals who can afford to offer their time.

Mayor Stokes concurred with Councilmember Robinson. He said most elected officials are paid, which is a reflection of how they are valued by our society. He supports appointing an independent salary commission to study the issue.

Councilmember Slatter thanked her colleagues for their comments. She said she values their perspectives but feels it is too early in her tenure to be comfortable in supporting the motion.

Councilmember Robertson expressed support for the proposed amendment. She noted that Councilmember Lee supports the ordinance.

→ The amendment adding the stated Whereas clause carried by vote of 5-0.

Deputy Mayor Chelminiak said Bellevue City Councilmembers are paid $19,800 annually, which was established in 1999. Since that time, state law introduced the ability to create a salary commission to review Council salaries. He said the intent is to appoint a one-time commission to study the Council salary and adopt a salary schedule.

→ The motion carried, as amended, by a vote of 4-1, with Councilmember Slatter dissenting.
